

Downy Arrowwood

Viburnum rafinesquinanum

-Downy Arrowwood is a small upright shrub that will grow in just about any situation that you put it in. It is only going to reach heights of 3-6 feet tall. This shrub will grow in full shade, partial sun, or full sun.

-Downy Arrowwood is distinguished by the somewhat downy undersurface of the leaves and the ellipsoid and flattened fruits.

-Downy Arrowwood is another shrub that our feathered friends just go bonkers for. If you plant it along with High-bush Cranberry and Winterberry, the birds will come a-knockin'.

Tell a child what to think and you make him a slave to knowledge. Teach a child how to think and you make all knowledge his slave.

-Henry J. Tait