

Lizards Tail

Saururus cernuus

-Lizards Tail is an attractive plant that will grow on the shorelines of rivers, lakes, and streams. The flowers of Lizard Tail droop about one third of the way up, thereby given it the look of a lizards tail.

-I believe that Lizards Tail is a wonderful emergent aquatic to plant due to the fact that it has very unique flowers. I would suggest planting a few of these beauties along with other flowering emergent aquatics, such as Sweet Flag, Common Bur-Reed, and Wool Grass.
